Roosevelt Takes Unprecedented Powers In 'Unlimited Emergency'

WASHINGTON —(AP)— President Roosevelt's proclamation of an unlimited emergency—an act without known precedent in American history—places power at his disposal to deal with virtually any contingency, legal experts said today.

Except for an actual declaration of war—something congress alone can make—President Roosevelt was represented as having full authority to meet any crisis.

His power would permit him, for instance, to commandeer or shut down radio stations, to take over utilities to obtain the necessary electricity for munitions production, or to compel transportation priority for movement of troops or war materials In each case, it was noted, however, a specific presidential proclamation would be required

This interpretation did not go unchallenged in some congressional circles.

Senator Taft (R.-Ohio), critic of many administration policies, contended that "the declaration of an unlimited emergency has no legal effect whatever. The president has no statutory or constitutional authority to declare such an emergency. His proclamation gives him no power he did not have a month ago."

Taft apparently referred to the "limited emergency" which Mr. Roosevelt proclaimed in 1939 Government legal experts said that there was no clearcut distinction between a "limited" and "unlimited" emergency, and hence technically the president might invoke his full powers in either case. In their opinion the president's purpose in proclaiming an unlimited emergency was to bring home to the people a realization of the full gravity of the hour.

"We will not accept a Hitler dominated world"—F. D. R. as he makes a fireside chat from the White House, telling the nation that he was placing the United States on a full emergency basis to fulfill its pledges of material support to all democracies fighting against the forces of Hitlerism.

When Mr. Roosevelt was inaugurated for his first term in 1933, he proclaimed a national emergency and invoked his extraordinary powers in those financially critical moments to close the country's banks.

The president, it was pointed out, is authorized to declare emergencies at times of disasters, such as from floods or earthquakes, as well as at times of threatened war. Some emergency powers are operative only after a declaration of war, but a majority could be brought into use according to the danger which the president determines to exist.

Among the things which legal experts say Mr. Roosevelt now has the power to do are the following:

Forbid Federal Reserve banks to do business except under treasury regulations.

Investigate, regulate or prohibit transactions in foreign exchange.

Place the coast guard under the navy (Mr. Roosevelt already has transferred part of it to the navy.)

Refuse clearance to vessels of a belligerent country which discriminates against American vessels or citizens.

Empower the federal power commission to require temporary connections for the transmission of electric energy.

Require any vessels to leave the United States waters or prohibit any vessel from entering them.

Remove duties from imported food, clothing and medical supplies needed in emergency relief work

Suspend the law prohibiting more than eight hours' work in a day by persons engaged on government contracts (this has been done in some instances).

Suspend the rules covering transmission of radio and wire communications.

Close certain places to the public under the espionage laws.

Fighting Talk Extends Scope Of Emergency

'Unlimited Emergency' Proclaimed By President as He Assumes Vast New Powers; Says Nation to Resist Nazi Effort to Gain Seas.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(INS)—President Roosevelt today ordered a special press conference to give the nation a further explanation of his declaration of an unlimited national emergency as the White House offered formal assurances to critics of the administration that freedom of speech is still their inalienable right.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt, in an historic address last night, committed the United States unreservedly to a policy of active resistance against all German efforts to gain control of the seas.

Proclaiming a state of unlimited emergency, he promised the nation a dynamic defense against attack, or threat of attack.

He told the world, in the face of Berlin warnings, of the administration's determination to deliver the goods to Britain, utilizing the present patrols which "are helping now" and "all additional measures . . . (which) are being devised by our military and naval technicians."

He gave advance notice that occupation of Dakar, the Azores or the Cape Verde islands by Axis forces would constitute a direct danger to the safety and freedom of the hemisphere.

"We in the Americas," he declared, "will decide for ourselves whether and when, and where, our American interests are attacked or our security threatened.

"We are placing our armed forces in strategic military position.

"We will not hesitate to use our armed forces to repel attack."

To underscore the acute gravity of the world situation as he saw it, President Roosevelt issued his formal declaration "that an unlimited national emergency exists and requires the strengthening of our defense to the extreme limit of our national power and authority"

"Your government," he told the people of the United States, "has the right to expect of all citizens that they take part in the common work of our common defense—take loyal part from this moment forward. . . . All will have opportunities, all will have responsibilities to fulfill"

Addressing himself particularly to capital and labor, he asserted that no disputes of any sort must interfere with arms production. The government henceforth would exert all its powers to end production stoppages. "Articles of defense must have the undisputed right of way in every industrial plant in the country."

This was the fireside chat for which the nation and most of the world had awaited eagerly for days. The radio carried it to the four corners of the globe by direct transmission, and by relays in the languages of many peoples—Spanish, Portuguese, French, Italian, German, Arabic, Dutch, Czech, Slovak, Greek, Serb-Croat, Norwegian, Rumanian and Bulgarian.

Even before the president faced the cluster of microphones in the east room at the White House, the complete text of his address was already being sent to Berlin

Declare Escape By Sea Stopped

Germans Assert Sky Troops Seize Canea As Empire Admits Withdrawal; English, French Clash.

(By Associated Press)

German "sky troops" have seized Canea, the capital of Crete, and smashed Allied resistance in the nine-day-old struggle, the Nazi high command declared today, while Luftwaffe dive-bombers frustrated a British attempt to escape by sea.

British Middle East headquarters acknowledged that British troops defending Canea have been "obliged to make a further withdrawal to a more favorable position in the rear."

"Severe fighting continues," the British communique said

A series of other swift-breaking developments paced the British setback on Crete. These included.

1 Capture of Halfaya ("Hell-Fire") Pass in Egypt by Axis troops now striking with renewed fury toward the Suez canal.

2 Britain and her old ally, France, have met in open combat for the first time—a clash between RAF and French warplanes over Syria.

3. Germany and Italy granted France permission to build up a continental air force for "defense of empire"—apparently countering Britain's threat to attack unoccupied France if Chief of State Philippe Petain continues his active co-operation with the reich.

In the critical battle of Crete, Hitler's high command asserted that Allied resistance on the 160-mile-long isle was crushed, with British and Greek defenders suffering heavy losses as they retreated.

Nazi mountain troops, supported by waves of machine-gunning and bombing attack planes, were said

British Warships and Planes Hunt Over Wide Atlantic Area For Prinz Eugen.

(By United Press)

LONDON — Warships of all types and planes of the fleet air arm and the coastal command combed an immense stretch of the Atlantic today for the 10,000 ton German cruiser Prinz Eugen.

They hoped to sink it as they had sunk the Bismarck and thus both consummate their victory and prevent the Prinz Eugen, as valuable a ship to the Germans in its class as the Bismarck was in that of the dreadnaughts, from preying on Atlantic shipping.

The Prinz Eugen, like the Bismarck, is just off the ways, and was last seen 350 miles southeast of the southern point of Greenland shortly after 3 a. m. Sunday. The British cruisers Norfolk and Suffolk then lost contact with the ships, which had been together, because of low visibility.

As is its custom, the admiralty remained silent, but Prime Minister Winston Churchill told the house of commons yesterday that "measures are being taken with respect to her."

Wheeler Calls FDR Talk Virtual Declaration of War.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.—(INS)—President Roosevelt, in his radio address last night, virtually declared war, Senator Burton K. Wheeler (D) of Montana said here today.

"It is a virtual declaration of war by the president without consulting the congress of the United States and contrary to the wishes of the American people," the Montanian asserted.

'Life' Staffers In City for Graduation Week Pictures

Mansfield Senior High school's pre-graduation exercises and its outdoor commencement program will be covered by Life magazine beginning tonight with the arrival in the city of a Life photographer and reporter.

Definite word that magazine representatives would reach here tonight was received by John G. Routzon, secretary-manager of the Chamber of Commerce.

Life's acceptance of the Chamber's invitation to cover the exercises will stamp Mansfield as a typical mid-western American city in the eyes of some 3,000,000 readers.

Class day exercises Thursday at 1:30 p. m will undoubtedly furnish the first shots as far as collective class activities are concerned as Kid day events, today, were expected to be completed by the time Life representatives arrived.

Baccalaureate services in First Lutheran church Sunday at 7.30 p m , the Senior party in the High school cafeteria and "gym" next Tuesday night and finally commencement Thursday, June 5, in the stadium at 6 p. m. are other events that will be caught by Life's camera.

Word that the magazine had accepted the invitation extended by the Chamber of Commerce came to Routzon from Oliver Jensen, educational editor of the national publication.

That the idea was favorably considered was revealed here last

STARTS STAMP PLAN JUNE 10

U. S. Ready To Begin New Food Distribution Here; Discussion Set.

Because of a slight delay in setting up the food stamp machinery in Richland county, the stamp plan will not go into operation here before June 10, William M. Walsh, Cleveland, assistant area administrator for the project, said today.

It was expected that the stamps would be ready for distribution to indigent families by next Wednesday.

Walsh said stamp headquarters have not been set up in Shelby, but the federal government is negotiating for a room in the city. In Mansfield, the stamps probably will be distributed from the relief office on Orange street, Walsh said.

The county's three relief areas, including Mansfield, Shelby, and districts outside the cities, are ready to provide an $8,000 fund to put the stamp program in operation, county commissioners said.

The program will provide for the allocation of books of stamps to relief recipients to be used as money in purchasing necessary food supplies from stores The plan will replace the federal surplus commodities method of distributing food to indigents.

City, county and relief officials and grocers throughout the county will attend a dinner June 4 at St. Matthew's Lutheran church where operation of the stamp plan will be discussed. Grocers will receive final instructions in handling the stamps at a mass meeting June 9 at John Simpson junior high school.

Homer King assistant manager of the Central Fruit and Grocery company, is chairman of the grocers' committee in charge of setting up the program.

BRITISH: Empire Jubilant At Promise to Deliver Goods

(By International News Service)

LONDON—Britain's government and people were jubilant today over President Roosevelt's radio address in which he reaffirmed that his promises to "deliver the goods" to Britain will be fulfilled.

Government authorities closely scrutinized the texts of the speech and the proclamation of an unlimited emergency in the United States but decided to issue no official comment at present.

Authoritative quarters stated, however, that Prime Minister Winston Churchill probably will seize the first opportunity to refer to President Roosevelt's address, and indicated the British government's pleasure.

The decision to withhold for the moment any official comment was based on the belief that such a statement just now might be interpreted as British interference

Authoritative London quarters pointed out the president's address primarily was a message to the people of the Americas. They added that "President Roosevelt's difficulties with his own people are thoroughly appreciated here."

Afternoon newspapers commented jubilantly on the radio message from Washington.

The evening standard described the president's words as a "trumpet call for those who fight" and added:

"President Roosevelt has identified the interests of the United States finally and irrevocably with the interests of Britain . . .

GERMANS: Nazis Turn Down FDR Freedom of Seas Policy

(By International News Service)

BERLIN—The German government today flatly rejected President Roosevelt's reassertion of the "ancient American doctrine of freedom of the seas."

Aroused by the American chief executive's radio address, Reich officials declared Germany will "stand pat" on its total blockade of Britain.

They declared that "Roosevelt's unilateral declaration of freedom of the seas is unacceptable"

For this reason, they warned, the German air force and navy has been ordered to sink every ship that penetrates the war zone—and these orders remain unchanged.

(Editor's Note: In his address last night, President Roosevelt said the United States navy already is on patrol duty in the North Atlantic and that "all additional measures necessary to deliver the goods" to Britain shall be taken.)

German authorities asserted that President Roosevelt's "undeclared war" has "misfired if it was intended to intimidate the Reich."

If anything, these quarters asserted, the effect of President Roosevelt's words will be an immediate increase in the pace and scope of the war "in every direction, to speed up the knockout blow to England."

German circles also said they accepted Roosevelt's speech and his declaration of an unlimited emergency as a "final proof that Britain is in desperate straits."

They declared that British Prime Minister Winston Churchill "obviously" had served notice on the White House in Washington that the British empire is faced with disaster "unless America now steps into the breach."

America's Course Charted---

An Editorial

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT last night set the course for the nation.

He set it in no uncertain terms. Certainly every American who heard it—and every German and Italian who was permitted to hear it—knows exactly what he intends.

Assuming powers which will permit him to deal with virtually any contingency by the unprecedented action of declaring an unlimited national emergency, he said that from now on this nation will determine its own course in world affairs.

He said that course was based on hard-headed concern for our own interests and that England knows it and the Nazis know it.

Mr. Roosevelt made it plain that future action by the United States has one unified purpose: to build our defenses and keep Hitlerism out of the Western Hemisphere by whatever means may be necessary.

He did not quibble about methods.

Calling convoys out of date, he placed no restriction on U. S. naval action.

Stressing continuing aid to the democracies, he said:

"Every dollar of material we send helps keep the dictators away from our own hemisphere. Every day that they are held off gives us time to build more guns and tanks and planes and ships."

Asserting that the Nazis plan to strangle the United States and Canada, he said:

"I merely repeat what is in the Nazi book of conquest. They plan to treat the Latin-American nations as they are now treating the Balkans. . . . The war is approaching the brink of the Western Hemisphere itself. It is coming very close to home. Control or occupation by Nazi forces of any islands of the Atlantic would jeopardize the immediate safety of portions of North and South America, and of the island possessions of the United States and ultimately the safety of the continental United States itself."

In answer to this threat he said:

"We shall actively resist wherever necessary, and with all our resources, every attempt by Hitler to extend his Nazi domination to the Western Hemisphere. We shall resist his every attempt to gain control of the seas. We insist upon the vital importance of keeping Hitlerism away from any point in the world which could be used and would be used as a base of attack against the Americas. . . .

Declares Nation Will Chart Its Own Course, Proclaims Unlimited Emergency.

and to Tokyo by Axis powers newsmen.

Foreign reaction was slow, particularly from official quarters. Sleepless British people followed the broadcast with close attention, however, and the typical man-in-the-street comment was: "He's with us all the way. . . . It means we're going to lick Hitler even sooner than we expected."

Prime Minister W. L. MacKenzie King of Canada saw "a clear declaration by the president that the United States has not only decided to reassert but it determined to maintain the freedom of the seas."

In Washington congressional opinion divided into two main schools. Supporters of the administration's foreign policy applauded the speech while opposition legislators called it a "speech to promote war hysteria."

The president's proclamation of an unlimited emergency, it was generally conceded, clothed him with extraordinary powers that may be exercised as events warrant. By issuing additional proclamations, it was pointed out, he can close or commandeer radio stations, take over power houses needed for munitions production, demand preference for troops and war materials on all transportation systems, or suspend trading on securities exchanges—to name only a few possible uses of power.

Legal circles, however, believed the president already had authority to do these things under the previous "limited" emergency. They were inclined to regard the "unlimited emergency" proclamation primarily as an instrument to hammer home the full gravity of the country's present position.

President Roosevelt delivered his address before a distinguished gathering of the diplomatic representatives of all the American nations.

Throughout the address, Mr. Roosevelt reiterated his conviction that hemisphere security was in jeopardy because of the Nazi plans for world domination.

"Adolf Hitler," he said at the very outset, "never considered the domination of Europe as end in itself. European conquest was but a step toward ultimate goals in all of the other conparent to all of us that, unless tinents. It is unmistakably apthe advance of Hitlerism is forcibly checked now, the western hemisphere will be within range of the Nazi weapons of destruction."

He offered his audience a blueprint of what he looked for, should Germany triumph abroad.

First would come the familiar assurances from Hitler. There was a sardonic tone in Mr. Roosevelt's voice as he recited them. "I am now completely satisfied. This is the last territorial readjustment I wil seek. All we want is peace, friendship, and profitable trade with you in the new world."

Should those assurances be accepted, he continued, the "dictatorships would be forcing the enslaved peoples of their old world conquests x x x to build a naval and air force intended to gain and hold and be master of the Atlantic and Pacific as well."

Next: "They would fasten an economic stranglehold upon our several nations. Quislings would be found to subvert the governments of our republics: and the Nazis wouwld back their fifth columns with invasion, if necessary.

"I am not speculating about all this," the president asserted. "I merely repeat what is already in the Nazi book of world conquest. They plan to treat the Latin American nations as they are now treating the Balkans. They plan to strangle the United States of America and the Dominion of Canada.

Mr. Roosevelt noted that the Germans were in a position now to occupy Spain, Portgual, Dakar, "and the island outposts of the new world—the Azores and Cape Verde islands."

"The war is approaching the brink of the western hemisphere itself. It is coming very close to home."

Mr. Roosevelt gave quiet emphasis to his next sentence:

"Control or occupation by Nazi forces of any of the islands of the Alantic would jeapardize the immediate safety of portions of North and South America, and of the island possessions of the United States, and therefore of the ultimate safety of the continental United States itself."

It was was not until the end of his speech that the president with measured gravity announced: "We reassert the ancient American doctrine of freedom of the seas."

The president formulated the national policy of the United States today in these words:

"First, we shall actively resist wherever necessary and with all our resources, every attempt by Hitler to extend his Nazi domination in the western hemisphere, or to threaten it.

"We shall actively resist his every attempt to gain control of the seas. We insist upon the vital importance of keeping Hitlerism away from any point in the world which could be used and would be used as a base of attack against the Americas.

"Second, from the point of view of strict naval and military necessity, we shall give every possible assistance to Britain and all who, with Britain, are resisting Hitlerism or its equivalent with force of arms.

"Our patrols are helping now to insure delivery of the needed supplies to Britain. All additional measures necessary to deliver the goods will be taken.

"I say, the delivery of needed supplies to Britain is imperative. I say this can be done: it must be done; it will be done."

ters said that the American president's remarks had "not changed anything" so far as Germany was concerned and added:

"It is up to the president if he wants to make his own war-like move without help from the Reich, since no one here has any intention of threatening America."

A spokesman for authoritative German circles said:

"President Roosevelt's proclamation (of an unlimited emergency) contains no surprises.

"Our impression is that Roosevelt is running after the war, cultivating political coueism and trying to cram the war down the throats of the American people.

"We have no quarrel with America, but we are ready to meet all newcomers.

"It is clear that any American supply ship crossing the ocean with supplies for England constitutes an indirect attack against Germany. Any American plane crossing to England is a potential raider against Germany.

"Thus it seems evident that it is not Germany which is threatening the United States, but viceversa."

President Roosevelt's emergency proclamation was viewed in Germany as a "desperate means of smashing opposition and overriding the will of the American people."

But authoritative Nazi quarters stressed that the Reich is not concerned over what was termed "Roosevelt's domestic dictatorship."

Nevertheless, high quarters displayed sharp resentment of President Roosevelt's inclusion of other American nations in what they described as his "panic campaign."

A spokesman declared:

"It is incomprehensive to us here that the president can speak for all the nations of the western hemisphere. He can speak only for the United States, and he should let the others speak for themselves. Otherwise he risks being told to mind his own business."

NAZIS ASSERT BRITISH CRETE FORCE BROKEN

to be pursuing the British across the island.

The communique said dive-bombing Stukas had thwarted a British attempt to retreat by sea with the destruction of four ships totalling 5,400 tons and the damaging of two others in Suda bay, site of a big British naval base.

On the North African front, Hitler's high command said Axis troops had recaptured Halfaya ("Hell-Fire") Pass, southeast of Salum, Egypt, and inflicted "severe and bloody losses" on the British.

The British had previously conceded the fall of Salum in the zigzag desert fighting, which has seen the outpost change hands a half dozen times.

On the Nazi sweep deeper into Crete, the German high command said operations by mountain troops, parachutists and air-borne troops were making "good progress" and had broken "the stubborn resistance of British forces and insurgent bands."

"In audacious attacks, the enemy was thrown out of its positions. The capital, Canea, was taken, and the defeated enemy forces are being pursued south of Suda bay."

The British admitted a critical stage had been reached, with imperial troops out-numbered and frayed by incessant aerial strafing.

"The situation is serious," a London spokesman acknowledged.

The Rome radio reported that Italy's navy had safely escorted two convoys with 70 shiploads of Axis troops and supplies to the Mediterranean isle.

If true, this would tend to support Axis assertions that the British fleet has been driven from Crete waters by the fury of dive-bombing attacks. Dispatches from Alexandria, Egypt, said yesterday part of the British fleet had arrived at its base there.

With little naval support and Nazi 'chutists still dropping from the skies in great numbers, the British were pictured as waging a desperate, exhausting battle "under the appalling strain of continuous bombing from the air, day and night, with no let-up."

London officials said that the worst danger spot was around the German-held Malemi airdrome, 10 miles west of Canea, the Crete capital, and that the situation around Canea itself and Suda bay was also 'precarious."

Strong Nazi reinforcements were also reported to have landed by parachute at Candia, in central Crete, where the British admitted the position was "not so good."

DNB said Nazi bombers had scored hits on a 12,000-ton British troop transport south of Crete—presumably en route to the island with the reinforcements which Prime Minister Churchill said yesterday were on the way.

The Germans further claimed that Nazi warplanes had sunk four British merchant ships totalling 13,500 tons in Crete waters.

Striking back, a British submarine was reported by the London admiralty to have sunk an 18,000-ton Axis liner with 3,000 troops aboard, bound for the battlefields of Libya.

The admiralty said that a 5,000-ton French tanker, escorted by Italian warships and headed for Tripoli, was torpedoed and sent to the bottom, and that another 5,000-ton transport and a 4,000-ton oil tanker were "probably" sunk.

From these reports, it was apparent that Germany and Italy were attempting to ship heavy reinforcements to their columns in North Africa for an intensified drive toward the Suez canal.

Premier Mussolini's high command said Axis troops "in victorious action" had captured important positions from the British in the Salum sector, on the Libyan-Egyptian frontier, and seized nine cannon and seven tanks.

The British conceded that the Germans had probably retaken Salum, but said the frontier post "has passed from hand to hand so often that it is getting slightly worn out."

On the Ethiopian front, the British reported that an entire Italian division—normally about 15,000 men—had surrendered in the lakes area southwest of Addis Ababa, the capital.

The 10,000-ton Prinz Eugen, which put out from Bergen, Norway, with the battleship Bismarck but disappeared before the Bismarck was sunk yesterday, was sought by 50 to 100 British warships and swarms of planes eager to make a clean sweep of Germany's latest surface threat to Britain's Atlantic lifeline.

Into the quest were hurled the powerful naval units which sent the Bismarck, shelled and torpedoed, to the bottom of the Atlantic 400 miles west of Brest yesterday after a chase that started near the Arctic Circle.

Germany mourned the loss of the Birmarck, which was one of the two biggest battleships she ever built.

The German press declared, in justification of the high command order sending the battleship into the British-patrolled Atlantic, that it was better to risk the hazards of sea warfare in the interests of victory than to wait in port as the German imperial fleet did through most of the World war.

GIVES LECTURE

Technocrat Takes Issue on U. S. Defense Program.

GALION — In a lecture, sponsored by Technocracy, Inc., at the public library, Tuesday evening, A. W. Atwater took flat issue with the government spokesmens' cry that Great Britain is our first line of defense.

He expressed that America's first line of defense is not a foreign nation or fleet, but our own great natural resources, our vast increasing technological equipment, and our superiority in numbers of skilled machine operators. These factors, he pointed out, operated under continental technological control for the production and distribution of an abundance of goods and services for all Americans would have vital repercussions on America's defense efforts. It would unify Americans as nothing else could do, it would put a speedy end to Fifth Column activity within this country, and it would provide us with a defense establishment of such magnitude that America would be made impregnable to any attack from without.

He explained how only Technocracy's method of operation can forestall a post-war economic collapse of such tremendous proportions that it could well throw this country into chaos.

America's Course Charted

"From the point of view of strict naval and military necessity, we shall give every possible assistance to Britain and to all who, with Britain, are resisting Hitlerism or its equivalent with force of arms. Our patrols are helping now to insure delivery of the needed supplies to Britain. All additional measures necessary to delivery of goods will be taken. Any and all further methods or combinations of methods, which can or should be utilized, are being devised by our military and naval technicians, who, with me, will work out and put into effect such new and additional safeguards as may be needed.

"The delivery of need supplies to Britain is imperative. This can be done; it must be done; it will be done.

"To the other American nations—20 republics and the Dominion of Canada—I say this: The United States does not merely propose these purposes, but is actively engaged today in carrying them out."

Turning to actual home defense he said:

"I have recently set up the machinery for civilian defense. It will rapidly organize, locality by locality. It will depend on the organized effort of men and women everywhere. All will have responsibilities to fulfill.

"Defense today means more than merely fighting. It means morale, civilian as well as military; it means using every available resource; it means enlarging every useful plant. It means the use of a greater American common sense in discarding rumor and distorted statement. It means recognizing, for what they are, racketeers and fifth columnists, who are the incendiary bombs of the moment."

When he turned his eyes homeward, Mr. Roosevelt said what a great many Americans have long considered needed vigorous saying. He said defense production must not be hampered. He virtually forbade work stoppages of national defense production and said capital and labor must adjust their differences without lockouts or strikes on the basis of impartial federal conciliation and mediation.

Among the powers President Roosevelt assumed to carry the nation on its course, through his declaration of an unlimited emergency, legal experts today listed the right to:

Forbid federal reserve banks to do business except under treasury regulations.

Investigate, regulate or prohibit transactions in foreign exchange.

Place the coast guard under the navy (Mr. Roosevelt already has transferred part of it to the navy).

Refuse clearance to vessels of a belligerent country which discriminates against American vessels or citizens.

Empower the federal power commission to require temporary connections for the transmission of electric energy.

Require any vessels to leave the United States waters or prohibit any vessel from entering them.

Remove duties from imported food, clothing and medical supplies needed in emergency relief work.

Suspend the law prohibiting more than eight hours' work in a day by persons engaged on government contracts (this has been done in some instances).

Suspend the rules covering transmission of radio and wire communications.

Close certain places to the public under the espionage laws.

Reactions to the president's talk ranged all the way from Alf M. Landon's comment "This is the end of democratic government in the United States—temporarily at least," to Senator Tom Connally's encomium "A ringing call to duty and service for all Americans."

But most Americans who heard the address last night and who are reading it today are probably reserving final judgment while at the same time preparing to do whatever is necessary personally to co-operate in defending America.

They are reserving judgment because in these wordy, hectic days they have learned to believe not in statements, threats, boasts or promises at home or abroad. They have learned to believe in what the talkers do.

It is in the light of what Mr. Roosevelt accomplishes with his vast powers under the unlimited national emergency that his words of last night will ultimately be evaluated.

But to many, the talk must certainly give rise to increased confidence in what will be accomplished, because it was not the speech of a super-salesman peddling theories. It was the speech of a man faced with danger abroad and at home who told what he was going to do in language that could be understood.

In essence that speech said to those abroad: If you tread on us we'll fight.

To those at home it said: Stop squabbling and get to work.

Bottlenecks On the Open Road

—By JACK STINNETT

(Second of three articles on the highways and national defense.)

WASHINGTON — There are nearly 200 training camps in the nation now, with anywhere from 2,000 to 78,000 trainees each, and actually hundreds of new defense plants.

Very few of these were located with any serious consideration of accessibility by highway. When you need thousands of acres for gun ranges and mass maneuvers, you can't always pick and choose your acreage. When you need acres of plant space on railroads, rivers and harbors, you can't worry about the highways that feed them.

When you have to put on big-scale army maneuvers like those held in the East two years ago; in Louisiana and Texas last year; and those scheduled to center in Tennessee in May and June, you can't decide on the site of operations solely on a basis of how much private traffic you are going to disrupt.

Concerning these last you can take the sweating and swearing of hundreds of thousands of motorists who already have been through it and of the several states, counties and cities which had to spend hundreds of thousands of dollars repairing damaged highway surfaces, broken-down shoulders, and rickety bridges.

Down to Cases.

As for the camp and plant areas, let me give you a few individual reports made to the American Automobile association by army and navy officials and by local motor clubs.

California, which prides itself on its great highway system, needs immediately about 300 miles of access roads, with an estimated construction cost of $28,600,000. At Camp San Luis Obispo, for example, traffic between camp and the town already is running 5,000 cars a day and increasing. At the Consolidated Airplane factory, about 6,000 cars of factory workers are parked in fields adjoining a main-line artery. Think what happens when shifts change and these 6,000 cars pour at once onto an already busy highway. In other defense areas in California, 2,000 cars an hour have been clocked in a single lane of two-lane traffic roads.

Between Chanute Field and Champaign, Ill., 12 miles of one of the state's most important north and south highways (U. S. No. 45) has become a traffic glut. There are some 60,000 men in training there and the highway is a sub-standard 18-foot road, with only two traffic lanes and poor surfacing.

At Wilmington, Ill., 3,000 defense workers commute daily to Joliet—at times almost blacking out traffic movement on 17 miles of the famous U. S. Highway No. 66.

nI the Norfolk, Va., area traffic congestion is probably at its worst anywhere and the local motor club reports, "Defense authorities here say that lack of proper highways would make it impossible to transfer aircraft units from nearby military posts to the navy yard within less than several days. Traffic volume in this area has increased from 50 to 242 per cent since 1940 and in the Hampton Roads area there has been a 190 per cent increase in traffic deaths over the first quarter of last year."

In Florida the traffic situation is also acute and an army colonel at Camp Blanding is reported as saying that "all the heavy guns and artillery are virtually prisoners at Camp Blanding due to poor roads in that area."

These are typical cases, and government and private road officials here assure me that they may be multiplied hundreds of times over to get a true picture of what national defense is doing to the highways of America.

Make America Real

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

THESE are bewildering days for most of us. We know that frightful things are happening. We know we should be alarmed about them . . . should do something about them. But we can't. For, somehow, in spite of all the terrible headlines, it doesn't seem real.

The taxes mount. The strikes increase. Junior goes marching off with the draft. We worry. We weep. We complain. And yet it doesn't actually seem real. The war doesn't seem real. The strikes don't seem real. America, itself, doesn't seem real. The whole affair doesn't get through to where we live.

This isn't because we're a stupid people or a bad people or a disloyal people. It's simply because we've been a comfortable and complacent people for too long. We've taken ourselves and country and our good fortune for granted, for too long. Other countries and their varied misfortunes have been like bad dreams to us. . . . bad dreams that could never happen to us. Only lately, slowly and reluctantly, are we awakening to the fact that these things may happen to us; that we are made of the same stuff as other nationals; that our high principles will not save us unless we make them a living issues.

In short, we Americans have been indulging in a beautiful pipe dream . . . and will end in a pile of ashes unless something awakens us in time. Something REAL, that will make us realize what we mean, and what our country means. A simple but terrific jolt of truth.

That's why I want to tell you about a certain book today . . . Dorsha Hayes' "THE AMERICAN PRIMER." For it's what we all need to jolt us out of that pipe dream of complacency and content.

There's nothing new about "THE AMERICAN PRIMER." It's simply a fresh and vigorous statement of the principles on which America was based . . . and for which it should still stand. But, reading it, one realizes, perhaps for the first time, how much those principles mean and what a terrible price they may cost.

We know, theoretically, what those principles cost one hundred and fifty years ago. But we have forgotten that principles go on costing, that their price is never really paid. It was not enough that America won her freedom once—she must go on winning it. It was not enough that we defied tyranny and injustice once—we must go on defying them. Even if all the proud plans of our hearts are crumbled into dust.

FOR THAT IS WHAT IT MEANS TO BE AN AMERICAN!

"What it means to be an American," that is the gist of Dorsha Hayes' brief book. It may not seem very profound . . . it's as simple as a First Reader in its construction. But it is the best medicine I've found to move the profound inertia . . . the deadly ignorance . . . the diseased complacency of the modern American.

For, whether we know it or not, we are already invaded. We are invaded by our own stupidity . . . our own vanity . . . our own intolerance . . . our own ghastly self-satisfaction. Unless we change, these things will destroy us far more speedily and horribly than an enemy's hordes.

Read Dorsha Hayes' book. Bring it home tonight with your loaf of bread and pound of round steak . . . spread it out on the table so your children may listen to its simple words. Let it tell them how great your heritage was once, and may still be. Let it make them feel to what cheapness they have reduced that inheritance.

MAKE AMERICA REAL ONCE MORE . . . BRING IT BACK INTO YOUR HOME.

Grand Canyon On the 'Must' List

—By G. J. KOCHENDERFER

GRAND CANYON, Ariz.—A drive of 2105 miles from Mansfield has brought us to this south rim of the Grand Canyon and given opportunity to view one of the most beautiful, awe-inspiring and colossal spectacles to be seen anywhere in the world.

We will miss seeing some wonderful things on this jaunt into the southwest and west—as, for instance, the Carlsbad caverns in southern New Mexico, about which all who have visited them go into ecstacies, and we will also detour around Bryce and Zion caverns in Utah, and Boulder dam, in western Nevada—but if the entire trip had brought no pleasure beyond that of spending a dozen hours looking down into and across Grand Canyon from the many places at which it presents an ever-changing picture, there could be no feeling of disappointment.

Many writers have attempted to give some idea of Grand Canyon to readers who have not seen it—but it hasn't been done, nor can it be done, for Grand Canyon is too immense and too beautiful to be translated into mere words.

Nor do pictures succeed in conveying more than a small fragment of this scenic wonderland, which presents material for admiration and free flow of imagination in every direction the eyes turn.

SOME hurried tourists come here. Louis Schellbach, archeologist and chief naturalist at Grand Canyon park, tells us, who take a nervous look at their watch and say, "I've only ten minutes to spare. Where can I see Grand Canyon?"

And Ranger Schellbach must tell them that Grand Canyon can't be seen in ten minutes—nor even in as many hours—for Grand Canyon is not one view, or a thousand views, but a constantly changing panorama of which one never tires and to which many visitors from distant places return year after year to see again and again.

BUT all of those who come to Grand Canyon do not really SEE it. One woman among a party of visitors, for example, looked down a mile and across ten miles to the opposite rim, and remarked rather petulantly, "Is it all like this?" Another visitor stepped from a Kansas-licensed car and ejaculated, "Golly, what a gully!"

And it is a tremendous "gully" that a turbulent river, now known as the Colorado, has cut through the 217 miles that mark the east to west range of Grand Canyon—with its start dating back to a time when there was probably no life existing on the earth. Width of the canyon varies from four to 18 miles, the average being about ten miles, as seen from Grand Canyon village and various vantage points in a 25-mile drive along the south rim from Desert View tower to the end of the west rim drive.

AN INTERESTING sight is that of parties of tourists leaving each morning on a muleback trip to the bottom of the canyon, for either a day's trip or an overnight stay. Contrary to an idea that these trips are made on small burros, the animals used are full-sized Missouri mules, trained for the trail trips and requiring no guiding by their riders.

AT THE BOTTOM of the canyon, almost completely isolated from the outside world, there is a colony of Havasupia Indians, pursuing agriculture and living in a self-contained way, in accord with primitive customs and untouched by the "culture" that surrounds them a mile higher up.

* * *

ANY aspiration to "see America first" must necessarily include routing by way of Grand Canyon—to stay a day, a week, or as much time as can be given—for men who have been here for years admit that they have not yet seen it all. There were 400,000 visitors last year and the early start-off indicates that more will be here this year.

Hull Lets Loose Bitter Tirade At Envoy Over Vichy-Berlin Move

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—When the secretary of state really gets wrought up he lets loose with the most vitriolic tongue-lashing of anyone in the Roosevelt administration. All the feudal instincts of the Tennessee mountains come to the surface.

Such a tongue-lashing was administered to the French ambassador the other day when M. Henry-Haye called upon Cordell Hull, following the new partnership between Hitler and Vichy. Mr. Hull talked for an hour. He talked slowly—as is his wont—but because he talked so slowly his words were more effective.

The secretary of state has one slight handicap—a lisp when it comes to the pronunciation of the letter "r". Climax of his tirade against the French came when he told Ambassador Henry-Haye:

"Your cooperation with Hitler was an act of bwigandry (brigandry), and if you continue I fear you will become a nation of bwigands."

Britain Deserted France.

In judging the French, however, it is important to go back exactly one year, just after the fall of France.

At that time, the military commander of Dakar, French naval base in west Africa, plus his civilian colleague, sent messages to the British government saying they were 100 per cent against the Vichy government and anxious to fight against Germany.

But the British government, very much embroiled with its own red tape, replied that they would get in touch with the French at Dakar later. Then other things happened, and when London woke up it was too late.

Simultaneously, French commanders in Syria also declared for the British. General Mittelhauser, despite his German name, was 100 per cent pro-British, as was High Commissioner Puaux. The latter even sent word to London that he would not be another King Leopold of Belgium to the British.

But time passed. The English were necessarily busy defending the British Isles from imminent invasion. A new commander was appointed in Syria, tall, fat, flabby General Dentz, hen-pecked by an ambitious wife, and picked by Vichy because he would obey orders. And today, the French army in Syria is passively cooperating with the Nazi invasion of Iraq.

All of the once coveted war material of General Weygand in Syria is now being loaded on the Istanbul-Bagdad railway for use by German-Iraq troops against the British. In other words, in both Dakar and Syria, the Vichy government had time to replace pro-British commanders—all because the British procrastinated.

Bullitt's Mistake.

One other factor played into Hitler's hands. It was William Christian Bullitt, delightful raconteur, charm-boy friend of FDR's, and ex-ambassador to France.

Bullitt came back from Paris after the fall of France, and announced upon his arrival in New York that the Vichy government of Marshal Petain was a great government and should be supported by the United States. Previously he had also cabled Washington urging recognition of the Petain government. This is the government which Secretary Hull now calls "brigands."

Bullitt's recommendation and Roosevelt's subsequent recognition took the wind completely out of the pro-British groups in Dakar, Syria and other parts of the French empire. Historians will brand it one of the major mistakes in American policy since the war started.

Before France fell, reams were written about the powerful army of General Weygand in Syria, how it could move into Salonika, thereby creating a second front to divert the attention of the Germans. But months passed and Weygand never moved. The French and British never could get together on a plan with Greece and Yugoslavia.

Today, Greece and Yugoslavia are gone; and General Weygand's supplies are being shipped from Syria to Iraq—all through indecision.

Note—The United States also faces certain situations where it will be too late to move if there is much more vacillation in Washington.

Midwest Sentiment.

President Roosevelt has just had a private poll taken of midwestern sentiment on the question of intervention in the war. Not satisfield with the confused and conflicting reports he was getting, FDR sent a personal representative to seven states to see what the people really thought, and he has just returned from Illinois, Iowa, Nebraska, South Dakota, Nevada, Colorado, and Utah, where he listened to farmers, editors, business men and gas station operators.

The White House aide has brought back a report which says in effect that midwest isolationism is largely a myth. On the question of convoys, he found hard-headed farmers saying they wanted to see American farm products delivered safely to the other side, not sunk to the bottom.

Roadside sentiment seemed to be, "What are we waiting for? This thing has got to be settled. Why not now?"

Bang, Bang, Bang.

Anything can, and frequently does, happen at a Dies committee hearing, and the opening session on red influences in the American Peace Mobilization was no exception.

Hardly had testimony begun in the large caucus room of the house office building when a loud bang rent the air. It was only a photographer's flash bulb exploding, but everyone jerked in his seat as if a gun had been fired.

The hearing came to an abrupt standstill. Acting Chairman Joe Starnes of Alabama interrupted his questioning of a committee investigator to glare at the photographer, busy extracting glass from his face.

The proceedings had hardly got under way again when there was another, louder crash on the opposite side of the room. The wind had blown shut the huge oaken doors.

When the tension once more subsided, Starnes, by this time grinning broadly, shattered the quiet with a loud bang of his gavel as he called for order.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Once I interviewed an astrologist and she assured me that one day Manhattan would sink into the ground. The tremendous tier of ever rising skyscrapers, she warned, was too great a strain on this little patch of earth called Manhattan.

The other day I asked one of the architects who planned many of the midtown skyscrapers about this and he laughed out loud. "You pulling my leg?" he demanded.

I assured him I really wanted to know.

"Listen," he said. "It's pure mathematics. Everything is figured in advance. You see that building over there—that tallest one?" He pointed to the RCA building in Rockefeller Center. "That building is 65 stories high. They had to dig a big hole before that building could be built. Well the rock that came out of that hole weighed more than the building does."

THE old unit show idea so popular in the late twenties is being revived, and the country as a whole is to see tabloid versions of the better Broadway musical shows. The man behind the idea is Miles Engalls. "Du Barry," "Cabin in the Sky," the "Scandals" are just some of the productions now playing motion picture houses throughout the country. These shows have been pared to an hour. In the final analysis, they aren't the real Broadway show—an hour's fun under a Broadway tag. In fact, it's vaudeville, but it's a good idea, it gives a lot of people jobs, and it makes money.

Those high-powered Spanish youngsters who have been dancing around town, especially at the Waldorf, are really cousins. Their names are Rosario and Antoine, though their manager sighs and yells "Los Chavalilles" when he speaks of them. "Los Chavalilles" means "Those Youngsters." They are quite something, in the current scene, for they have aroused widespread comment, and when you get people to talking, you are forging ahead.

Rosario really wanted to become a bull fighter but gave it up at the age of 6 with the help of a little prodding by her parents.

Antoine and Rosario are real Spanish gypsies, born near Seville. For the last six years they have been principally occupied at escaping wars. The Spanish Civil war altered quite a few plans for them, as did the fall of France. Now they are nuts about New York and, of all things, baseball. They have 45 dance routines. They could have been in "Panama Hattie" last fall but other commitments made this impossible. They hope to remain in New York indefinitely.

Bea Wain, the songstress, won a bowling tournament held in a mid-town alley. She played to a background of her own singing as the management and onlookers kept her records turning in the juke box.

There's a place along Broadway where, after going through a turnstile on payment of a quarter, you can eat all the spaghetti you want at one sitting.

The autograph fans, who hang out around the favorite dining places of the film and stage stars, now carry small cameras.

A Farmer's Diary

A Family Man

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

IT USED to be when I lived alone, that I went and came just when I most desired. No explanation was necessary, for nobody cared to know what I did, or if they did, I knew nothing of it. If I returned early or late there were no wondering minds or inquisitive voices.

When the lonely quiet room where I lived grew stale, I often walked out through the solitary lanes of field and wood. If in winter my steps were brisk or if in early spring I stopped to enjoy the first shoots of spring flowers—or in summer looked with delight upon thrifty corn or waving fields of wheat—or in autumn sought the paths to the nearest fruiting orchard—there was no one to share my feelings, no one to tell who cared to know.

When I returned home, the chairs were in the places where I had left them, my notes were in the pigeonhole where I had put them, my clothes were in the wardrobe where I had hung them, the dust was just as thick in the open space between the carpet and the baseboard as when I closed the door. The room was large. Crossing the uncarpeted part to turn on the light, my own footfalls echoed startlingly.

Time has radically changed my way of life. Five children and my wife unconsciously protest against the lonely habits of my former days. There is no room that I can call my own. Even my most cherished notes and keepsakes may be shared destructively by curious prying hands,—or even laughed at—if they are not kept under lock and key.

My best shoes may be widely separated when I need them most—my old hat may go walking off on twinkling short legs and when I lift it, legs and all, I find a roguish red cheeked baby face beneath it. I have lived long enough as a family man to know that little boys and puppies are alike in many ways . . the kitchen furniture and the icebox door are ever on the swing if my wife and I go for a needed change of scenery before mealtime.

If, after supper, I step from the porch to walk about almost instantly the door opens sharply and voices ask in concert, "Daddy may I go along, tonight?" The tiniest one slips through between the knees and catches two of my fingers in his hand. They follow me about—indoors and out—by day and night, hardly a step behind. I must be careful.

But for all the inconveniences, and little disappointments that five children give, I envy no one his wealth of gold or lands, his freedom, or his lonely hours of bliss. It is far different from what it used to be—and I am glad!

I am a family man.

BOMBER PARTS CALL FOR MANY SKILLED HANDS

Automobile Plant In Detroit Unable to Convert Own Manpower.

DETROIT—(U.P.)—One of the most serious problems facing the automotive industry in its program to build parts for 12,000 bombers is finding 50,000 skilled workers for the job.

Auto plants cannot draw upon their own employe sources to fill the needs because aircraft parts manufacture embodies an entirely different type of work, according to W. F. DeGroat, technical adviser of the Automotive Committee for Air Defense.

Riveting, sheet metal work and special kinds of welding which comprise the bulk of man-hours in bomber sub-assembly are strange tasks to the assembly line auto maker who performs only one duty over and over again, DeGroat said.

DeGroat estimated that 50,000 specially-trained men would be needed in auto plants to complete their unusual assignment for national defense. The Ford Motor company, Chrysler Corporation and General Motors Corporation will be the primary sub-contractors in the program and let our smaller pieces of work to other concerns. Ford is to make parts for Consolidated's B-24 four-engined bombers; GM will handle North American's B-25 twin-engined bombers, and Chrysler will build for Martin's B-26 twin engined bombers.

"This is one of the most serious problems in the entire program," DeGroat said. "It has to be solved before we can start to help the aircraft industry. Plants and machinery set up for bomber parts production will be useless without trained personnel, and it doesn't look like the aircraft industry can spare us any of their men."

DeGroat pointed out that a large aircraft company is spending approximately $1,000,000 to train 8,000 employes in a Long Island, N. Y., technical school.

The auto companies will have to train men for the bomber assignment at their own cost. If the trainees are taken from auto assembly lines the companies will incur the additional cost of replacing them, it was said.

One source for skilled aircraft workers is the national defense training commission which in cooperation with the WPA and state unemployment services offer special courses on the subject in public schools and technical colleges.

The Briggs Manufacturing company, which makes automobile bodies, is taking workers for its aircraft sub assembly division from a Detroit high school where the special courses were inaugurated last September.

FILES $10,228 DAMAGE ACTION

Mansfielder Claims He Was Disfigured In Truck and Automobile Crash.

Alexander Hamilton, 220 North Mulberry street, today had filed suit in common pleas court asking $10,228 damages for injuries allegedly received in an automobile accident last Jan. 14.

Naming Herman J. Schmitz and Marie Schmitz of the Cement Products company, 369-375 Park avenue east, as defendants, Hamilton in his petition claimed that he was riding in a car driven by Fred Hallabrin when it was struck by a truck operated by George Kilgore, an employe of the defendants.

The accident happened on Lexington avenue, according to the petition, when Hallabrin, traveling in the same direction as Kilgore, attempted to pass the latter. Kilgore made a left hand turn into an oil station, the petition stated, causing a collision.

Hamilton claimed he had concussion of the brain and received six facial cuts that will permanently disfigure him as a result of the accident.

TOO TALL

Army Seeking Recruits Rejects Youth Because of Height.

AZTEC, N. M.—(INS)—Aztec holds but few distinctions in this world of progress but it can boast of having a man too big for Uncle Sam's army or navy.

Frank Kohl, 24 years old, six feet and six inches tall, raw boned and weighing 253 pounds, is having a hard time trying to squeeze in somewhere so he can be of service to his country.

When he tried to enlist he was informed he was too big, then came the draft and Frank was pleased because he figured Uncle Sam would now get his man. Frank registered, received his questionnaire, and then he received his call to arms, but at the last minute it was decided Frank was too big for the draft.

King's Cousin Lost

Lord Louis Mountbatten, above, cousin of King George VI, may have been lost with the destroyer he commanded during naval operations in the battle of Crete. Mountbatten's destroyer, H. M. S. Kelly, was sunk. Eight officers and 120 men were reported saved.

FAMILY KEEPS NAME TRADITION

SOUTH BEND, Ind.—(U.P.)—What's in a name?

When the late Utah Smith named his children, he apparently kept an atlas handy.

Among his sons, there are Arizona, Mexico, Maryland, Michigan, and Nevada Smith. Two daughters were named Florida and Virginia.

And son Mexico carried on the family tradition by naming two of his children Theodore Wyoming and Utah Max.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour 2 pints of bile juice into your bowels every day. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food may not digest. It may just decay in the bowels. Then gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. You feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these 2 pints of bile flowing freely to make you feel "up and up." Get a package today. Take as directed. Amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. 10¢ and 25¢

HEADACHE

When your head aches and nerves are jittery, get relief quickly, pleasantly, with Capudine. Acts fast because it's liquid. Follow directions on label. All druggists. 10c, 30c, 60c.

TRIES HARMONY

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah—(UP)—The "Ironbound quartet" was organized in Salt Lake City 35 years ago as the city's "outstanding musical" organization. For three years, members gave programs two or three times a day.

In 1909 the quartet broke up and its members—Joseph and Gordon Garratt, Otto Oblad and Charles Sorensen—separated. Recently they had a reunion and the quartet went into action again—for the first time, as a unit, in 32 years.

Senior pupils, selected on merit, will have an active part in the crowning of the Blessed Virgin as Queen of May. Miss Norma Conroy will place the crown.

Statue of the Blessed Virgin will be carried from the courtyard, where all students will assemble for a processional, into the church by four senior boys. They are: James O'Leary, Elmer Berger, Richard Pfeifer and Francis Wehinger.

Litany of the Blessed Virgin will be led by David Massa, Richard Dalton, Phillips Diebler and Robert Dillon.

Miss Conroy's attendants will be Miss Virginia Varney and Miss Betty Moritz. Josephine Colongelo will carry the crown.

TURNS HOBBY INTO BUSINESS

SANDUSKY, O.—(U.P.)—What began as a hobby of stocking an abandoned, water-filled quarry with fish now has become a business for Edward J. Hinkey.

Hinkey began turning blue gills, trout, pickerel, perch and catfish into the quarry about five years ago. An ardent fisherman himself, his quarry soon became a headquarters for anglers in search of bait.

Then private ponds, clubs and even state hatcheries began to buy fish, and Hinkey's quarry came to occupy as much of his time as did his welding business.

The Dance of Mars—De-Nitrogenizing Flyers

This pair, who might well be mistaken for dancing Martians, are stratosphere test pilots breathing pure oxygen and exercising to wash the nitrogen out of their blood. At high altitude nitrogen might form air bubbles in the blood and thus bring on aero-embolism, the aerial equivalent of a deep sea diver's bends. Now denitrogenized, the flyers must wear their masks at sea level. Among equipment is a small bail-out mask connected to a bottle of oxygen strapped to the right leg.

SENIOR SCHOLASTIC AWARDS PRESENTED

Miss Julia Fishback and Miss Clara Beer Receive A. A. U. W. Awards When University Women Entertain Seniors.

FOR THE FIRST TIME since the organization of the Mansfield branch, American Association of University Women, six years ago, the annual scholastic awards to high school students were made at the Senior Tea at the Westbrook Country club Tuesday afternoon. Miss Julia Fishback, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Fishback, Townview circle, and Miss Clara Beer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Beer, Park avenue east road, were presented with the honors by the association president, Mrs. Merritt Giles.

The gifts from the group were gold lockets and the awards were made by names chosen from the upper scholastic fourth of the Senior high school girls, and which were presented with questionnaires to the high school faculty to judge which girls were the best all-around young women of the class.

As has been the custom for several years the members of the association have entertained the senior girls, who were planning on furthering their education, with a tea and program at the close of the school semesters. Yesterday at one of the nicest of their parties, the A. A. U. W. members were hostesses to 55 young women of the high school. Guest speaker for the occasion was Miss Florence Partridge, dean of women at Heidelberg college, Tiffin, who in her charmingly informal way discussed the benefits of college for the young women.

Preceding the program guests were received by Miss Partridge, Mrs. Giles, the retiring president; Mrs. Charles Kuntz, the new president, Miss Pearl Danback, dean of girls at the high school, and Miss Betsy Cave, secretary of the High School-College club. During the tea period musical selections were played by a group from the high school orchestra under the direction of S. K. Jorgensen. Miss Edith Ross, Mrs. R. D. Campbell, Miss Leona Miles and Mrs. George Ingram presided at the tea tables which were daintly decorated with spring flowers and other appointments in the pastel colors.

Mrs. Giles gave the word of welcome to the guests and response was given by Miss Gretchen Edwards, a senior. Flute and clarinet duet was played by Miss Lois Ohler and Harvey Todd. Miss Ohler and Miss Ann Jeannette Klinger, who played in the orchestra, were given recognition for their part in the senior activities.

More than 125 were in attendance for the annual party planned by Miss Ruth Dunham, general chairman.

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, May 29.

A day of enterprise and initiative may be indicated by the lunar and mutual aspects, with matters moving into high grooves of accomplishment not only by strenuous attack, creative ability and high-pressure measures, but by push, industry and well-made plans and invincible and practical objectives. Executive ability will also play major part, with new ventures as well as static situations responding to constructive and sustained effort. Clever balances of opposing forces and conflicting circumstances operate effectively. Personal activities should also be stimulated and give happiness. Confer with elders.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a year in which their own individual and well-directed energies, forces and faculties should push both old and new affairs into high spots of achievement and satisfaction, initiative, aggressive methods, executive ability as well as sturdy attack and industry play conspicuous part in attaining major objectives. A need for equilibrating opposing forces or diverse interests and objectives may be imperative, and influence the ultimate results. Social, domestic and affectional matters also should promise much activity and gratification. Elders are friendly and cooperative.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"I am afraid it is what we call 'good box-office'," I told Olga, smiling a bit ruefully.

"That is what Philip tells me," she said with a little sigh. "Please do not misunderstand me," she added quickly. I have not discussed my real fears with Philip. I simply made that comment upon Mr. Redfield's impassioned love-making, putting my objection upon the ground of it not being quite good taste. And, of course, as always, Philip was most considerate of my feelings in answering me. But I had the feeling that beneath his courtesy he was adamant, as I fancy he always is where his productions are concerned."

"Anyone who has ever been associated with him has learned that lesson," I said dryly, with an emphasis drawn from experience. "It is the first in his curriculum."

"I realize that," she said, "and knowing there was no possible chance of his comprehending my fears, I have waited until I could talk to you. Now that you are here, you do not mind discussing the affair, do you?"

From the direction of the balcony which Mary had picked out for me there came a sound so slight that, if my perceptions had not been keyed to so high a pitch, I never would have noticed it. But I was sure my ears were not playing me false.

"Mind!" I repeated, stressing the word emphatically. "It is the one thing I wish most to do. I want all the light possible on the affair before I deal with Mary."

"I hope you deal with Noel, also," she said. "I do not know him well enough yet to talk to him on so vital and intimate a subject, and I am loath to have his father interfere. They have such a beautiful companionship now, after their long misunderstandings, that I dread seeing it disturbed."

"It must not be disturbed," I told her quickly. "I do not know just when I shall have an opportunity to talk to either of them as length, because the business which has called me here is a most serious one. As I told you, it vitally affects Lillian, and I must give it all my attention during the short time I can spend here.

"Philip ought to come back any minute now," I went on, "and then I shall redeem my promise to tell you all about my errand. But I want you both to hear the entire story, and I cannot take the time to tell it twice, therefore I am asking your indulgence for the double interview."

"Our time is yours, my dear Madge," she said, and I smiled at her gratefully.

Mary's Problem Critical.

"Just now," I told her, "I want to give every bit of our talk to this regrettable affair of Mary's. Did you mean, by what you said just now, that there has been any open break between Noel and Mary?"

"If you mean that either of them has gone away from the hotel to live, or has openly broached the subject of divorce, the answer is 'No'," she said.

"But," she went on slowly, "though they try very hard to act as if they were on amicable terms whenever any third person is with them, I am sure that they are having frequent violent quarrels on the subject of Stephen Redfield. That was why getting another man in his role seemed to me a possible solution of the problem."

"I am afraid it would be but a temporary solving," I told her firmly, for I knew how unyielding Philip Veritzen would be on that question. "Any new man would be fairly certain to admire Mary, as Redfield does."

"The Authority on Authorities"

IMPORTANT TO KNOW

Many things connected with the game have gained such standardized usage that it never is necessary to ask your partner the meaning he attaches to them. Others are employed differently by various players. One of these is a redouble after the intervening opponent has doubled your partner's opening suit bid. With most players this indicates a certain minimum amount of high card strength, usually about two or two and a half tricks. If you prefer to use it as merely indicating emphatically that the doubled contract can be made, you had better be sure your partner so understands it.

This was one of the hands which helped win the Vanderbilt cup recently for the youngest team that ever gained it—Robert A. McPherran, 25; John R. Crawford, 25, Myron Fuchs, 29, and Sherman Stearns, 40 averaging under 30. South on this deal was young Crawford, with veteran campaigners against him, Jacoby at the left and Lightner at the right. Mr. Jacoby thought his partner's redouble showed at least about the standard amount of honor strength for it, whereas Mr. Lightner felt that his later bid of diamonds indicated he had made the "fitting type of redouble and so warned that he might be shy of honor strength.

Bold play helped produce an overtrick for Mr. Crawford. The heart 2 was led and ran to the 7 and 8. Then he decided to play Mr. Jacoby for both missing spade honors leading the 4 and putting in the 9, which held. He then set up the dummy, ruffing with his own longer trumps. The heart K was cashed, showing the trump distribution, the diamond 3 ruffed by the heart 4, a spade led to the K, the diamond 4 ruffed with the heart 6, the spade A used for another dummy entry and the diamond 5 ruffed by the heart A. Next he led a club. Mr. Jacoby getting two tricks in the suit. But that was all for his side, as trumps and a good spade settled it for Mr. Crawford's big swing.

HEY! SWAN'S AS PURE AND MILD AS IMPORTED CASTILE!
MAN OH MAN! NEVER SAW SUCH SWELL LATHER IN THIS HARD WATER!
LOOKIT! SWAN'S GRAND IN THE KITCHEN—AND HOW IT LASTS!
THE FIRST REALLY NEW WHITE FLOATING SOAP SINCE THE GAY NINETIES
Goodbye hard-water worries— when Swan floats into your home!

It's 8 ways better! Try it and see!

HAVE YOU EVER BEEN ABLE to get gobs of silky suds from old-style floating soap? Didn't it make you mad that all you could stir up was a thin, skimpy lather in local hard water?

Here, at last, is a new kind of soap—and does it lick that hard-water suds bugaboo! Feel it, smell it, lather it! And next thing you know you're falling for Swan, the first honest-to-goodness different floating soap in your whole lifetime!

Different? Yes—better in eight distinct ways!

1. Quicker suds in hardest water! Swan bursts into luxurious lather in water "hard as nails"—gives suds two times faster than old-type floating soaps.

2. Richer, creamier lather, too! Not only does Swan suds quicker, but it gives richer, creamier lather. Suds that don't die out, if you leave your dishpan for a spell.

3. Whiter! Pure as imported castile! Swan's as mild, by test, as imported olive oil castile—considered until now tops in mildness—the recognized "baby" soap. Ask your doctor about Swan's purity and mildness—he has the details in his medical journals.

4. Much firmer! Lasts and lasts! Feel this harder cake! It has less moisture than old-type floating soap. See how it lasts and lasts.

5. Breaks smoother—easily! No need to find a knife or string to cut Swan. No jagged, rough edges; it breaks smoothly into 2 lovely cakes—one for kitchen, one for bathroom.

6. Swan smells fresher! Never harsh or strong. And Swan keeps its fresh, clean, wholesome odor down to the last useful sliver.

7. Smoother, finer-textured! Swan is richer- yet so thrifty you'll feel free to use it all over the house. Swan won't warp, either.

8. Gives you more real soap! Swan has much less moisture than old-style floating soap. No need to store a supply to dry out and harden. We've done it for you!

Order Swan from your store today—and compare! Use it for face, hands, bath; for baby; for silks, dishes, woodwork. Then—if you don't say: "Swan for us!"—we'll give you double your money back. Simply send the wrapper to Swan, Lever Brothers Co., Cambridge, Mass.

BUSINESS IN MANSFIELD

Shows A "Healthy" Steady Growth

Statistics are often dull, but sometimes an interesting story lays behind important facts and figures. A report of the condition of Mansfield business, for last month, reveals a splendid growth . . . with substantial gains in every phase of the city's business activities, except the county's relief case load. Here is something of interest to every citizen of Mansfield, for as Mansfield and Mansfield's business progresses and grows, as a whole, we as individuals will also thrive and prosper.

• INDUSTRIAL EMPLOYMENT SHOWS IT!

In the fact that Mansfield's total industrial employment reached the sound and satisfactory figure of 12,148 for last month (April). And in the gain to date, of only 10.02 per cent for such a high total, is revealed the additional fact that industrial employment is not merely good now, but that more and more people HAVE BEEN WORKING for some time.

•BUILDING PERMITS SHOW IT!

Because everywhere one sees beaver-like activity in the building trades, with new houses being erected in all parts of the city. Last month's building permits reached the impressive total of $239,255 or a gain of 31.03 per cent to date.

• CAR LOADINGS SHOW IT!

Despite a small decrease in car loadings for April, as compared to March, the total of 4629 was reached, and it must be borne in mind that the figure for March was the highest ever to be attained. Car loadings to date show a substantial 21.47 per cent gain.

• COUNTY SALES TAX REPORTS SHOW IT!

The sales tax reports are considered by many to be a fairly accurate barometer of Mansfield's and Richland County's business. The total for April was $61,849, a marked increase for both March and April, and representing, to date, an increase of 10.71 per cent.

• NEW CAR REGISTRATIONS SHOW IT!

Automobile registrations (new car sales) have been especially good in Mansfield, and play an important part in the evidence of the city's and county's business growth. A total of 541 new cars were registered during April, and the new car sales, to date, show an enviable 20.25 per cent increase.

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD — Just thinking about Bob Hope makes me tired. If I sat here and thought about Bob Hope a few minutes longer I'd wail weakly for grandma's smelling salts and slip gently into a nervous breakdown.

But I think about Bob Hope every time I hear an actor complain about the hard life of an actor—the infamy of it all, the slavery for a few paltry thousands a week.

Here's a picture of what goes on in Bob Hope's daily life, between benefits:

Usually, a before-breakfast nine holes of golf.

By eight—at least it was so during the time his current film ("Nothing But the Truth") was behind schedule—he is at the studio looking through a nice hillock of mail, after which he also glances at his script. During rehearsal of same, he signs a dozen checks, tries on a couple of new suits he'll wear in the picture, answers a couple of phone calls and explains that he can't serve at one war relief benefit because he's scheduled for another the same night.

By 11 a. m., two, maybe three scenes are finished, Hope has greeted a delegation of visiting firemen and agreed to appear at their convention in the fall, has posed for "gag" pictures on roller skates, has tampered with the writing on the next scene and signed up for a British war relief show.

By 3 o'clock he's acutely aware that he forgot to eat lunch at the luncheon, so he sends out for some concentrated food tablets. By four he has done another scene, greeted more visiting firemen, done an interview.

He's due to quit work at six, but if necessary to accommodate another player (who has a commitment for the morrow) he'll work on.

By 8:30 p. m. he walks on the stage, full of bounce, and "gives" for a lengthy show. He's home at midnight for an ice-box raid and a quick roll into bed—and golf in the morning.

FUNERAL SET

Rites For Mrs. Maude Mykrantz To Be Held Thursday.

Funeral services for Mrs. Maude B. Stout Mykrantz, 51, of near Ashland, who died at her home yesterday following a six-week illness, will be held at the late home, five miles northwest of Ashland, Thursday at 2:30 p. m.

Rev. H. H. Scott, pastor of the South Clear Creek Christian church, will officiate. Burial will be in Ashland.

CONGRESS WILL ACT IN SPITE OF EMERGENCY

Experts Say Representatives Still Must Appropriate Funds, Set Taxes.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Congress will still function despite President Roosevelt's declaration of an unlimited national emergency, congressional legal experts declared today.

While the president can undertake action of far-reaching importance without consulting congress the constitution is unaffected and congress can both legislate and debate momentous issues without any restrictions.

Congress must still appropriate the money to run the vast governmental machine and it alone has the power to impose the heavy taxes necessary to make it function.

"A declaration of national emergency gives the president vast powers but there are some things that he cannot do without action by congress," said Rep. Cox, Georgia, ranking Democrat on the house rules committee.

"The constitution is not suspended. The declaration does not affect the right of free speech. True, the main things that congress can now do is to levy taxes and appropriate money."

Congressional observers, however, expressed the view that the declaration of an emergency may have the effect of making it easier for the president to obtain enactment of measures he seeks. It also may make opposition more difficult.

While Republican members asserted that they will still be free to support or oppose any measures, they conceded that Mr. Roosevelt probably will have his way virtually on any measure touching national defense.

Congress now has before it a $3,500,000,000 tax bill and must act within a month on appropriation bills totalling more than $15,000,000,000. It also has pending a score of measures dealing with national defense problems.

Rep. Vinson (D) Ga., chairman of the house naval affairs committee, spurred by Mr. Roosevelt's declaration against strikes, plans to push a modified labor bill which requires a "cooling off" period of 30 days before strikes can be inaugurated in defense industry.

SPECIAL VOTE

Plymouth Seeks Election on Muny Light Plant System.

The Plymouth village council today sought a special election July 23 on a proposed plan to build a municipal power and light plant to serve the northern Richland county village.

The request was included in referendum petitions filed by J. H. Rhine, clerk of council, with the county board of elections. The election board and secretary of state must approve the election.

A majority vote of approval at a special election would authorize the Plymouth council to employ engineers to make a preliminary survey of the village's power needs and estimate the cost of a municipal plant. It would then be left to council to decide whether to proceed with plans for erecting a plant.

LOCKE AT ODDS WITH CRAFTON ON CITY DRINKING FOUNTAIN

Mayor William J. Locke smashed into the opening moves of what looms as "The battle of the water fountain" today as Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton took steps to protect previous agreements signed with members of council.

With a swift counter-thrust resembling the Nazi "britzkrieg" warfare, Locke announced that he was installing a new $25 porcelain-lined drinking fountain at Maple Lake park.

Crafton in a previous announcement said that the fountain would be placed at the southeast corner of Park Avenue west and Walnut streets. The director said that council wanted the fountain at that busy intersection so that a greater number of residents could examine it.

The fountain is to be installed as an experiment. If it passes the necessary tests, the city will buy nine more of the same type for use in downtown streets.

Mayor Locke and Crafton previously clashed over the question of maintaining one-way traffic through Park avenue east subway while a water line was being laid under the subway. Crafton ordered that it be closed to protect motorists. A week later the mayor countermanded Crafton's edict and ordered one-way traffic.

The "battle of the subway" was denied as vociferously as "the battle of the fountain" probably will be. The mayor said that he was going to install the new drinking fountain at Maple park for children playing there.

The new fountains will not have a continuous water flow as those now used. A lever must be pressed to start the water and cuts the supply when released. Crafton pointed out that this will save the city a great deal in water costs and that the porcelain style will be more sanitary than the concrete ones now used.

Up and Down the Street

Two Senior high school girls thought they had made a mistake and had gotten into the wrong part of the school building this morning when the first sight that caught their eyes upon entering was a lad clad in ragged shorts, a shirt minus most of its shirt-tail, and a dilapidated straw hat. He was gnawing hungrily on a fist-sized lolly-pop, and arms akimbo was staring nonchalantly into one of the class rooms. They saw a lot more of the same kind of thing before they had progressed very far for it was "Kid's Day" today and the Senior class members were having a last fling at fun before leaving the building.

With the mercury high in the 80's to make ideal swimming weather, the pools at Liberty park and Casino park are being groomed for Memorial day opening. Pools are being filled early so the sun can warm the water, and equipment at the pools has been painted like new. Some of the boys who couldn't wait for the pools to open have been cooling off in Maple lake, but parks officials do not advise swimming there.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—Speedy signing of the $352,000,000 biennial appropriation bill—largest in state history—was expected today of Gov. John W. Bricker.

The "money bill" was among 87 sent to the governor yesterday as the 94th general assembly formally adjourned. He has 10 days in which to veto measures if he so desires.

Bringing his veto total to five for the session, the governor yesterday disapproved of bills to transfer the division of boiler inspection from the department of industrial relations to the state industrial commission, and to repeal present statutes requiring county clerks to supply the secretary of state with information on court criminal cases.

An attempt by the Democratic minority in the senate to override one of Governor Bricker's vetoes failed 14 for to 11 against, with 22 votes needed to override. The vetoed measure would have established a new procedure for sale of property on court order to pay assessments.

Speaker William M. McCulloch of the house and Lieut. Gov. Paul M. Herbert of the senate named members of joint committees which will make various investigations while the legislature is inactive.

Members of a commission to recodify school laws are: House—Walter R. Tarr (R-Hamilton), W. H. Knepper (R-Williams), John R. Paskell (R-Perry), Bernice M. Keplinger (D-Stark); senate—C. W. ## County Employes Get Extra Holiday, City Stays on Job

County and state office employes in Mansfield will have a three-day Memorial holiday week-end, but city employes will have to interrupt their vacation to work Saturday morning.

County commissioners, who said they have been besieged with requests from courthouse workers to declare a three-day vacation, announced today that county offices will be closed both Friday and Saturday.

With a sheriff's sale of real estate scheduled for 10 a. m. Saturday, the courthouse will be available for the sale during the morning, commissioners said.

Mayor W. J. Locke said that, although city offices will be open until noon, employes who plan to be out of the city over the week-end may be able to arrange a full day holiday Saturday.

Schools and stores in the city will be closed Friday for Memorial day, and hundreds of Mansfielders are expected to leave the city for the first holiday week-end of the outdoor season.

In between the bows he's still taking for the scholastic physical education demonstration of Monday night at Stadium field, Physical Director Harry Mehock of Mansfield schools may be observed these days giving himself a furtive pat on the back for something most of you may have forgotten—the Mansfield Relays.

It took last Saturday's state high school meet at Columbus to open the Mehock optics to just how good his Mansfield Relays were.

And Mister and Madam, those Relays were good. Of the 14 state champions crowned at Columbus, 11 performed in this year's Mansfield classic.

And that's not all. The Mansfield champion in the 100 and 220 dashes, Bob Carr of Mt. Lebanon, Pa., won the Pennsylvania championship in those events in better time than was turned in at the Ohio meet.

By this time Harry should know how
To step right up and take his bow.

Of the 70 point winners in the state meet, 51 had competed in this year's Mansfield Relays. And in five events of the Ohio high school meet, Mansfield Relays contestants made a clean sweep of the five scoring positions.

The sweeps were scored in the broad jump, 880 relay, low hurdles, 880-yard run, and pole vault. And in other events Mansfield contestants scored 1-2 in the discus; 1-2-3 in the mile; 1-2 in the 440; 1-2 in the high jump, and 1-2-3 in the mile relay.

Mansfield performers who won titles in the state meet were: Clark, Cleveland East Tech, broad jump; Craig, Newark, discus; McDonald, Toledo Waite, mile; Dillard, Cleveland East Tech, 120 high hurdles; Cleveland Collinwood, 880 relay; Little, Cleveland Heights, 440; Dillard, Cleveland East Tech, low hurdles; Scalley, East Palestine, high jump; Whipple, Cleveland Heights, 880; Bean, Springfield, pole vault, and Cleveland Heights, mile relay.

* * *

To those Relays point with pride,
We've got champions on our side.

Indians Falter, But Roy Reaches .300 Class.

DETROIT — (AP) — The twice-beaten Indians were in an unhappy mood as they moved here today to continue a four-game series with the Tigers but they pointed to one bright spot in the club's recent play.

Roy (Stormy) Weatherly, the Tribe's speedy center fielder, rapped a double and a single yesterday to boost his batting average to .302, the first time he has been above .300 this season.

Last year at .302 Roy was the only Cleveland regular to finish in the charmed circle and his return to form means some added blows from the top of the batting order. Jeff Heath, Hal Trosky, Gerry Walker and Ken Keltner also are hitting over .300 now.

Weatherly scored after his double in the first inning to give the Indians an early lead, but Al Milnar had one of his bad days and Detroit bagged the decision, 9 to 6.

The Tigers batted around in the seventh inning to tally five runs and rout the big southpaw. Clint Brown and Harry Eisenstat finished.

Schoolboy Rowe gave up eight hits before retiring in favor of Johnny Gorsica in the seventh, but received credit for the victory.

There were five home runs in the game, Bruce Campbell getting two and Rowe one for the Tigers. Keltner and Ray Mack connected for Cleveland in successive times at bat in the sixth.

As Chicago also lost, the Tribe maintained its four-game lead. Mel Harder was nominated for mound duty today against the Bengals, who called on Dizzy Trout.

Among the many things Carl Hubbel must have learned in his dozen years of major league pitching is that the best way to win a ball-game is to do it yourself.

Hubbell took personal charge of the Giant's first home game under the floodlights, conquering the Boston Braves, 2 to 1.

Hal Schumacher and Manuel Salvo had fought it out for the first seven innings with the only scores coming on a pair of home runs by Joe Orengo and Eddie Miller. Then, after an hour's recess while the crowd listened to President Roosevelt's speech, Hubbel and Dick Erickson resumed the duel. The Braves promptly loaded the bases on two hits and an error but a double-play saved Hubbell and he repaid that kindness in the ninth by singling home Bill Jurges with the winning run.

Another night encounter also wound up in the last half of the ninth, with the league-leading St. Louis Cardinals pulling out a 3 to 2 decision over the Chicago Cubs. That victory kept the Cards 2½ games ahead of the Brooklyn Dodgers, who eared an easy 6-0 decision over the Phillies in the National league's only afternoon contest.

The Philadelphia Athletics, currently the "hottest" American League team, had to share some of the day's honors in the junior circuit with Detroit, which knocked off the league-leading Cleveland Indians. The A's took a 5-2 trimming from the Boston Red Sox in the first game of a double-header but came back behind the three-hit hurling of young Phil Marchildon to win the second, 11-1.

Chicago's second-place White Sox remained four games behind the Tribe when Bob Muncrief's six-hit pitching carried the St. Louis Browns to a 5-2 triumph.

The New York Yankees staggered to a 10-8 decision over Washington after Red Ruffing had blown up in the sixth and lost a good part of a nine-run lead.

Everything Set For Fight Show at Armory Thursday

All preparations have been completed for the return of professional boxing to Mansfield tomorrow night at the armory.

The ring and bleachers were set up yesterday, and ringside chairs placed in their vantage point about the scene of battle.

Now all that's needed are the customers to fill those seats, and the advance sale of tickets, according to Sam Saprano, matchmaker, indicates that the seats will be well filled when the boys who punch for pay and glory climb in the ring tomorrow night.

Returning to his home-town ring for the first time in several years will be Dick Honeyboy Jones who won plenty of pay and glory fighting in and out of Pittsburgh.

Jones meets Frankie Williams, hard-punching Akron university middleweight in the ten-round main bout. Ordinarily Honeyboy would be a top-heavy favorite over the Akron youngster, but after a six-month vacation from the ring wars Jones may find Williams giving him plenty of trouble.

Williams has fought and beaten some good boys in the last two years, has been fighting regularly, and promises to give the Mansfield veteran a battle.

It will be "old home week" too for the popular Beauford Glover who won the Cleveland Golden Gloves lightweight title a year ago, and who piled up a string of four straight victories after turning professional this past winter. The string was broken by Sammy Secreet of Pittsburgh, who owned too much experience for the Mansfield boy.

Glover tangles with Tiger Jackson, Barberton veteran who packs a knockout wallop. They'll go in the six-round semi-final bout.

Paul Carbetta, Mansfield's flyweight champion of the Cleveland Golden Gloves this spring, turns professional in a five round go with Russ Brown of Akron who has won three pro fights after he finished as runner-up for the American Legion state amateur bantamweight championship in the Akron tournament of a year ago.

Four round prelims will feature a grudge battle between two Ashland heavyweights, Harold Strine and Paul "Chief" Parker. They fought a whale of a scrap on a recent card in Ashland, so the report goes, and the fact that they come from the same town will not make them too friendly when they start tossing leather.

Other four-heaters bring together Kid Mondue, veteran Marion lightweight and Jackie Young, tough Akron youngster who already has earned a reputation as a crowd pleaser, and Jay Heilman, Ashland, and Jackie Martin, Akron lightweight, who stopped Benny Amburger in two rounds in his last bout.

One more four-rounder will complete the card.

Officials named for the show are: John Eichinger, referee, Sam Fox, timekeeper, Jim Brownescomb, announcer, Gip Miller, George Allerding and probably Paul Eliot, judges.

And the first bout is booked for 8.15

Tickets are on sale at the City News.

TRADE RUMOR SENDS MIZE TO CHICAGO

ST. LOUIS —(INS)— A rumor was making the rounds of St. Louis baseball circles today to the effect the Cardinals would look with favor upon a deal bringing them Lou Novikoff, Chicago Cubs rookie outfielder, and a hunk of Chacago cash in exchange for Johnny Mize, slugging first baseman.

Madison Books Fight Pictures

The biggest fistic argument since Louis and Angel Firpo, Wild Bull of the Pampas, knocked Champion Jack Dempsey through the ropes and newspapermen helped the Manassa Mauler back into the ring, is still raging over that Joe Louis-Buddy Baer fracas of the other evening.

The argument, of course, centers around the question of whether Louis hit, and knocked out, Baer after the bell. A congressional investigation has even been proposed.

Mansfield fight fans will have an opportunity of judging the argument for themselves this week-end as the championship fight pictures are shown at the Madison theater Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Sound effects with the picture should go a long way toward clearing up the question of foul or knockout.

Errors Fail To Halt Hustling Braves Who Stage Late Rally for Victory

By REX HESS, News-Journal Sports Editor.

MANSFIELD'S hustling Braves proved to a ladies' night crowd at the Fairground last night that it takes more than a few bobbles to bounce them out of a ball game.

Last year there was much complaint among the fan flock who charged that all too often the boys would quit after committing a few misplays, and there were times when it looked that way.

* * *

But this is another year and another team, and the Braves bounced back last night to trounce the Fremont Green Sox 12 to 7 after spotting the Sox to several of those seven runs through five costly errors.

In this league the fans can expect errors, but they can also expect hustle, and that's what the Braves gave them last night.

Mansfield needed a four-run rally in the seventh to break a 7-7 deadlock and give big Fred Wolpert a well-earned victory. The Sox got to Fred for two hits, and from then until the sixth they got nary the semblance of a bingle, but when the sixth was over they had chalked up six runs on a total of three hits. Hausman's homer over the left field fence in the seventh was their only earned marker of the evening.

Fremont took a three-run lead in the opening stanza on a walk, two singles and an error, and added another run in the second on a hit batsman, a sacrifice, a walk, and an error.

* * *

Mansfield got in the ball game with a three-run splurge in the second. Eddie Mutryn and Tim Mangan led off with singles, but when Moore and TeStruth flied out to left and Wolpert grounded to short it looked like the threat was over.

But Shortstop Oddo booted the Wolpert roller, letting in one run, and Bob Ankrum crashed through with a double to drive in two more.

The Braves took a 6-4 lead in the fifth with another three-run outburst. Morse got a life when Kobel, camping under his high fly in left, let the ball get through him. Salem singled, sending Morse to third, and Dick scored as Siegbert rolled into a double play. Mutryn kept the rally going with a single, and scored on Mangan's triple to the right field corner.

Geygan Gets Five-Day Rest

Set Down For Profanity By League President.

Mansfield baseball fans looked in vain out on that diamond at the Fairground last night for a sight of Chappie Geygan, Fremont manager telling the umpires off.

But they heard him soon enough, up in the stands, yelling at the umps on occasion, and directing his team without the usual Geygan color.

Chappie had told the umpires once too often.

President Joe Donnelly of the Ohio State league, passing through Mansfield this morning, said he had set Geygan down for five days for using profane language and knocking a watch out of an umpire's hand in a game Sunday.

Last night was Chappie's first off the bench.

Oberlin Favored In Meet

Gil Dodds of Ashland Picked In Two Events.

By DON SMITH

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—Oberlin college, the defending champion, will rate a solid favorite to capture its third straight Ohio conference track and field title at the 39th annual conference meet Friday and Saturday at Wooster.

* * *

Oberlin will send seven men who scored 24½ points in the conference meet last year. Oberlin edged Toledo by a half point last year for the title, 43½ to 43.

The Oberlin squad was undefeated in five dual meets this year, boasting a powerful aggregation of 17 lettermen.

The outstanding point winner returning for the conference meet is Jake Chandler of Toledo, the only returning veteran from that school. Last year Chandler captured first places in the high and low hurdles, the high jump and placed third in the broad jump for a total of 18 points.

Gil Dodds of Ashland, one of the best distance men in the country, is expected to win the mile and two-mile runs without any trouble. The Ashland star won both events in the all-Buckeye meet held last Saturday at Miami.

Three other runners who are favored to place high in their special events are Fred Crawford of Kent State in the 100 and 220-yard dashes, Richard Rule of Otterbein in the 440-yard dash and Richard Stock of Capital in the dashes.

Preliminary events will be run off in the field events and in the shorter races Friday to reduce the field in event to six. Finals in all events will be held Saturday afternoon

The 20 schools in the conference have entered more than 200 athletes in the track carnival. The conference tennis championships will be played the same two days at Kenyon college.

Braves Beat Green Hose

Mangan also tallied when Gerken's relay to the plate sailed far over the catcher's head.

Back came Fremont with two runs in the sixth to tie it up, but the Braves took the lead again in their half with a run on consecutive singles by Morse, Salem and Siegbert.

Then Hausman's homer made it necessary for the Braves to rally again in the seventh. Mangan and Moore drew passes to start the inning, and Ed "Chile" Onachila was replaced on the mound by Henry.

Braves at Home.
Thursday—Fostoria.
Saturday—Findlay.

Wolpert and Ankrum doubled and Morse and Salem singled to bring in four runs. The rally might have been going on yet but Morse was caught at the plate and Salem was caught off second.

* * *

Siegbert drew a walk to start the eighth, but injured his foot going into second on Mangan's single. He was replaced by Manager Alex Clowson who scored on TeStruth's single.

Ankrum and Oddo, rival shortstops, covered acres of territory to give the fans plenty of fielding thrills last night, while Ankrum connected for three doubles in five trips.

The Braves go to Fostoria tonight.

Races In Holiday Event

FRANK LIPTO

Race Entries Jump to 23, May Pass 30 Mark By Friday

Overnight the entries in Mansfield's Memorial Day auto races at the Fairground have jumped from 15 to 23, and the original estimate of 25 cars made by Race Manager E. M. Miller appears not only a certainty, but conservative.

* * *

"We'll probably have over 30 cars qualifying in time trials Friday morning at 11 o'clock," Miller declared today, "and they'll all be in the three elimination races starting at 2:45 p. m. over the five mile route.

* * *

"The nine survivors of the elimination heats will battle it out for the top purse in the 15-mile grand finale."

Among the new entries are the three drivers who finished 1-2-3 in last Sunday's race at Salem, Indiana, led by Harold Shaw, winner of the Salem speed test.

Two entries were received from drivers who are coming all the way from North Carolina for the holiday event, and three more entries came in from South Bend, Ind.

There'll be plenty of thousands of dollars in gasoline steeds racing for the top purse. "That car of Rex Barr's has nearly $6000 in it," Miller asserted, "and all of the cars cost from $3,000 to $5,000 and over apiece.

"These drivers give their cars better care than you'd give to a fine watch, and no watch ever ran with finer precision than those racers. After each race they tear down their cars and wash each part with gasoline, at the same time checking up on any adjustments that may be needed."

* * *

The Memorial Day races will be the first of a series of three auto speed events at the Fairground this summer sponsored by the International Automobile Racing Association.

Hostak Attempts Second Comeback

CHICAGO—(AP)—Al Hostak, the Seattle battler with the glass hands, will try tonight to disprove again the old saying that "They never come back."

* * *

He will meet Tony Zale, Gary, Ind., fighter recognized as the middleweight champion by the National Boxing association, in a 15-round bout in Chicago stadium.

Hostak, one of the hardest punchers in the business, has been plagued by "hand trouble" ever since he reached the top.

Three years ago Hostak proved champions sometimes do come back. He lost the title in 1938 to Solly Krieger of Brooklyn when he broke both hands. Later he regained the crown only to lose it to Zale.

The Gary boy won a decision over Hostak here 16 months ago, Hostak again breaking a hand. Then last July in Seattle Zale dethroned Hostak by a knockout in the 13th round.

MOVIE HOUSES SHOW INCREASE

NEW YORK — (UP) — Movie houses in the United States have a total seating capacity of 11,390,006, as of Jan. 1, the Film Daily Year Book of Motion Pictures reveals. This figure represented a gain of slightly more than 140,000 over the previous year.

New theater construction was placed at 877, with the area east of the Rockies accounting for most of the increase. Total expenditure was placed at $24,087,172 by the Year Book.

Operating movie houses totalled 17,541, a 12-month gain of 538. The total investment in these properties was reported to be $1,927,100,000, compared with $1,903,000,000 as of Jan. 1, 1940.

Red Birds Homers Whip Butland

(By Associated Press)

Young Bill Butland is back in the American Association where he first attracted big league scouts, but he's having only indifferent success with the Louisville Colonels.

Two years ago Butland, then a rookie of 21, had a big season with the Minneapolis Millers, winning 19 games.

This season the Red Sox sent him to their Louisville farm for more seasoning, but he's been an in-and-outer so far.

Columbus' home run attack whipped him again last night, three circuit blows accounting for four runs as the Redbirds trimmed the Colonels, 6 to 5.

Bill Cox of Indianapolis turned in a mound masterpiece in whipping Toledo, 12 to 0.

The Kansas City-Minneapolis game, with first place at stake, was rained out along with the Milwaukee-St. Paul engagement.

WILLING TO BET

PITTSBURGH, Pa.—(AP)—Light Heavyweight Champ Billy Conn collected a $19,431.10 check for victory over Heavyweight Buddy Knox of Dayton, O., and announced he would "bet $10,000 of it (at prevailing odds) that I beat Joe Louis." Conn made his offer yesterday as he left for New York to sign for the June 18 heavyweight title match with Louis.

Homer Saves Shutout Loss

Westies, Barnes and B'Nai B'Rith Win.

Westinghouse trounced Yuncker Sports 8 to 1 at Liberty park while Barnes Challengers edged the Smoke Shop 11 to 10 at Johns park and B'nai Brith won a 15 to 14 decision over the Safety Cabs at Prospect in softball tilts of the Class 'A' Independent league yesterday.

Yuncker Sports took a 1 to 0 lead in the first inning with a home run by Baki, the only home run of the game, and the only run for Yunckers as Westinghouse piled on 8 to win by a large margin.

* * *

Although backed by Miles who made three runs, one a homer, out of three trips to the plate, the Smoke Shop couldn't make those extra two runs that would have spelled defeat for Barnes Manufacturing.

The B'nai Brith-Safety Cab tilt was called because of darkness at the end of the seventh inning with B'nai Brith leading by one run.

Now in MANSFIELD—new Super-Lubricant with "X" safety factors for sustained high-speed driving

Sustained-speed driving is a new, extreme condition made possible by today's cars and superhighways . . . "Roads of Tomorrow" are here today

35¢ a quart

WARNING: Until recently, motor oil—even "the best"—was not made for today's driving. Under sustained high speed, chemical changes may take place in such oil—"break down" its protection.

SHELL X-100—the new super-lubricant—was created to solve this problem. Extra safety factors—the new "X" factors—resist "BREAKDOWN" and thus retard CORROSION, SLUDGE, VARNISH, RING STICKING. It was proved in the laboratory, then proved on the road through 5,000,000 miles of test driving!

IMPORTANT NOTICE

With the 1,000,000-car curtailment of automobile production already announced, a new car will be harder to get. Take the best possible care of the car you have now, or the one you buy—use SHELL X-100 for maximum protection. Ask your Shell dealer to DRAIN AND REFILL NOW WITH SHELL X-100 MOTOR OIL.

Love—By Trial and Error

By Kathrn Bemis (Copyright, 1941)

CHAPTER XXX

She sat on a bench beside a tiny pond and aimlessly watched goldfish rising lazily to the surface, then darting off as if a gulp of air had given them boundless energy. Her brain churned like a treadmill around and around the thought of tomorrow. Only a few hours—and she would be bound to Rex—for life. Oh, surely Bill would call up, perhaps even now he was calling her.

She couldn't sit here in an agony of suspense any longer. Neither could she figure out anything. What ever came—or did not come—she would have to accept. She couldn't chase after a man who didn't want her.

She bounced up in agonized haste and ran all the way back to the apartment.

What met her startled gaze jarred Bill Anderson and every other man completely from her thoughts.

"Auntie! Auntie!" she cried frantically. "Auntie — what happened?"

Susan Stone, groaning with pain, was lying full-length on the living-room floor.

"I—I've broken my legs!" she moaned when Raye burst into the room. "Call a doctor—call a bone specialist—call some one—quick! I slipped on one of your awful rugs! I thought you'd never come!"

"Oh auntie—darling!"

Raye whirled to the telephone and quickly called Dr. Holbrooke.

Then she made her aunt as comfortable as possible until he arrived a few minutes later.

Dr. Holbrooke settled Susan Stone in bed and bandaged a sprained ankle.

"How long before she can walk again, doctor?" asked Raye.

"A matter of several weeks. It's a bad sprain—often a sprain is worse than a break."

"Oh, why did this have to happen to me?" wailed Susan. "My niece is being married tomorrow—she's going to Hollywood."

"No, I'm not, auntie—not now," declared Raye stoutly. "I wouldn't think of leaving you." This delaying of her marriage seemed a veritable godsend, although she was very, very sorry for Aunt Susan."

But after the doctor left, Raye had a heated argument with the determined woman in the bed.

"I can't—I won't allow this to interfere with your plans, Raye," she insisted, over and over again, until Raye was nearly frantic. "It's so unnecessary! You've promised to marry Rex tomorrow—you'll have to do it!"

Raye said, not conscious of her petulant tone, "You're really more interested in my marrying Rex than I am, auntie. A marriage can always be postponed, you know."

"Not this marriage, my child! Never in a thousand years will you find so generous a man! Let him go back to Hollywood without you and you're liable to lose him."

Raye laughed shortly. "Don't borrow trouble, darling. If Rex loves me that little, I'd be lucky to lose him."

Raye understood perfectly her aunt's haste to see her safely married to Rex. Not only her niece, but auntie herself would be settled, probably for life, in a very comfortable berth indeed.

However, it was some weeks later before Raye learned what was really causing her aunt's nervous haste. And by that time, although she was provoked, it didn't matter quite so much.

Rex was far more considerate about the whole situation than Raye had hoped, although he did suggest once that "the old lady" might be safely left with a trained nurse or in a hospital.

But Raye was adamant. "I wouldn't think of leaving her!" she firmly declared.

So from then on Rex appeared to agree with Raye's slightest desire in the matter, even to postponing his own trip to Hollywood. This involved long wires and many telephone conversations with directors and producers, but Rex made no complaint.

The weeks lagged along, with Raye daily becoming more and more hopeless over Bill Anderson's continued silence. She could not understand it. Was Bill trying to be honorable because she was engaged to Rex?

Several times she decided to call him up but at the last minute her pride always won. No—if Bill Anderson wished to talk to her, he could call her himself!

But she winced every time the telephone bell rang, then eagerly snatched the receiver from its cradl in glad anticipation. But it usually was Rex's voice that came caressingly over the wire—never Bill's.

Finally she began to allow bitterness toward Bill to take the place of her love for him. She believed that for some reason or other Bill's feelings toward her had changed. With this in mind, she was finding it easier to go on with plans for marrying Rex.

But everywhere Rex took her, she anxiously scanned faces, hoping that one of them would be Bill's, hoping against hope, that Bill would see her and speak to her. Then she was forced to decide that either he was deliberately avoiding her or that he had left town.

Before Susan Stone was on her feet again, she received a splendid piece of news from Clarissa Bell. Clarissa had recently received a legacy and was ready to start another specialty shop. Surprisingly enough, she invited Susan to come to Boston again to assist with the new project. And surprisingly enough, Susan was willing to give up everything else and rush to Boston. For some reason or other, Raye could see that she thought a business partnership preferable to living on a relative's bounty. And of course Raye was thankful and encouraged this admirable attitude.

Aunt Susan had been an irritable, unappreciative invalid, however, and now in her anxiety to help Clarissa start a new business, she was even more so. She stretched Raye's patience to the limit, so that Raye was never sorry to leave the apartment and escape her aunt's complaining tongue for a few hours. She would set the telephone stand beside auntie's bed and, now that she was not suffering pain, feel quite easy about her.

Then came an evening when Rex was taking her to the Wilville hotel for dinner—an evening that Raye was destined never to forget. Tonight Rex seemed painfully distraught over something.

"What do you say to getting married this evening darling?" he asked bluntly as his car was wedging through the early evening theater traffic.

Raye clutched her handbag in tight fingers. She could not think. She stammered, "Why, Rex—why the rush? I thought—in a week or so—when auntie is up and around—I thought we'd decide. . ."

"I've a plan now—perhaps you'll like it. You never were so very keen about marrying me, Raye."

Raye gulped back a protest and said nothing. Sometimes she was even tired of pretending she wanted to marry him. She only hoped that tonight he wouldn't bring things to a showdown—insist they get married at once. Probably he carried the license with him always—in case she suddenly weakened.

They came to the hotel and got out of the car. A porter touched his hat, jumped into the car and took it to a garage.

Rex quickly guided Raye through the revolving door and into the lounge.

"I'd like you to remember always—Raye—that I loved you," Rex said, strangely hoarse.

She glanced up in quick alarm at his tense face.

"Rex, why are you acting like this?" she asked apprehensively. "You've told me so many times—how you feel toward me. I—I don't understand—"

Then suddenly, like a clear-cut mirage, everything opened up before her

From the large divan they were approaching, rose Bill Anderson.

"Good evening, Raye." His face was glowing with something that stirred her.

Rex said quickly, "I'll leave her with you, Bill. Good luck—to you both."

The few words sounded like a short but solemn sermon

* * *

Rex wheeled and was gone before the astonished Raye could speak.

"Surprised, darling!" asked Bill, his heart in his eyes.

"Why—why, yes. What does it mean, Bill? Rex said nothing about—about meeting you here."

"He and I arranged it, dear. Come on—let's get out of here—go where I can explain."

Breathless and starry-eyed, she went quickly with him to the street and into his new blue sedan parked by the curb.

Without question she sat close beside him, now and then glancing covertly and proudly at his strong-featured profile as they sped through the brilliantly lighted streets

She was filled with a contentment now that seemed oddly unreal. She wanted to pinch herself to see if all this were true. She and Bill—alone together again!

He parked finally on a deserted country road. He gathered her in his arms almost reverently. His warm lips were on hers.

After a long moment, he said, "I don't know of a squarer shooter than Rex Maine. We happened to meet at the City club today, got to talking and fixed up everything. He said he'd realized for some time that you didn't care about him. I was desperate, darling. I asked him point-blank if you loved him. He acknowledged you didn't. He said he's suspected all along that you and I were very much in love—said he wanted you to be happy."

"Poor, dear Rex—we can never thank him! But, Bill—you didn't even phone—you made no move to . . ."

"Oh, yes, I did! I called up dozens of times—but your aunt always said you never wanted to see me again or even talk to me—that you were marrying Mr. Maine."

"You must have called when I was out. How terrible of auntie to try to keep us apart! Oh, Bill—you know I did care! But I thought you were engaged to Rosalind!"

"Who said so? I was never engaged to her—never wanted to be!"

Her happy sigh flung away her old haunting doubt of him forever.

"Bill, darling—if people followed the golden rule, how much happier we'd all be."

She thought of Rosalind's deft insinuation that she was engaged to Bill—of Aunt Susan's scheming to get her married to Rex—how easily Hal Bedford might have smashed her whole life. Colossal selfishness, all of it. Yet how she could forgive them all, because she was so happy.

"Mr. Grinner has just given me a raise, darling. I've my eye on a little bungalow in the Greenwood section that's a honey. If you like it—if you'l like to live there. . ."

"Oh, Bill, Bill!" she whispered, nestling tight against his shoulder. "Oh, darling—I—I love you so!"

--- PAPERS, NOTES AND SKETCHES DOWN TO PUT IN A BANK VAULT! WHAT A TIME WE'VE HAD! -- THE BRAVE OLD COLONEL, HOW HE CARRIED ON EVEN AFTER HE WAS HURT. I BELIEVE IT WAS--
---HIS WORKING OVER THE PATENT PAPERS AFTER HIS INJURY THAT MADE HIM FAINT.
JEFFREY SAYS IT'LL BE SOME TIME BEFORE HE HEARS FROM HIS APPLICATION, SO HE'S GOING HOME FOR A VISIT.
HI, PAM! I GOT TO WONDERING IF IT'S SAFE FOR YOU TO BE IN THE OFFICE ALONE! MAYBE I'D BETTER PARK HERE TILL THE COLONEL RETURNS!

5-28
AND WHAT DID YOU DO-CLAP YOUR HANDS?
NO, I DIDN'T-IT WAS VERY EMBARRASSING TO ME
SOMEBODY SHOULD SAY SOMETHING TO ME ABOUT YOU AND THERE'D BE A BATTLE, BUT IT'S DIFFERENT WHEN SOMEBODY KNOCKS ME! YOU'RE A RECEPTIVE AUDIENCE!

STOCKS MOVE UP SLIGHTLY ON MARKET TODAY

Advances General as Roosevelt Talk Forms Chief Topic on Wall Street.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Stock prices moved slightly higher today on a thin trickle of buying orders.

Advances were general toward the second hour but many leaders still had not been traded.

Virtually the sole topic of discussion on Wall Street was President Roosevelt's proclamation of a state of unlimited emergency.

A consensus of operations appeared to be that far-reaching developments—of a type not yet entirely predictable—might be expected in the near future and they consequently exercised caution in undertaking commitments.

Other outstanding items of business news with market co-relations were:

The greatest automobile sales in history, running around 600,000 cars this month—with a dearth of new cars in prospect;

A record high non-agricultural employment of 37,617,000 persons, indicating mounting consumer goods demand;

Additional increases in gasoline prices and a reduction by 56,000 barrels of gasoline stocks.

BRITISH HAPPY OVER FDR TALK

Jubilant Over Promises To 'Deliver The Goods'; Papers Comment.

It amounts to an iron pact between Allies."

The Evening News termed the address a "final warning to Hitler" and remarked that the "gauntlet has been thrown down."

Throughout Britain, among official quarters and in the streets of the great cities, the towns and hamlets, the people received the words of the American president with utmost enthusiasm.

They declared it a "categorical challenge to Nazidom" which they regarded as leaving no further doubt of Roosevelt's determination to overcome every obstacle to bring swift American aid to the embattled democracies.

In addition, Britons received the speech as proof of the American president's determination to "fight" to preserve the inviolability of America's front doors.
